CONCLUSION

BCWD's reforestation project through the Adopt-A-Forest Program is now at 45 hectares with twenty-eight generous individuals/institutions/organizations. This indicates that many organizations and individuals recognize the importance of our watersheds not only for the sustainability of our water supply but also to help combat climate change in our own diminutive efforts.

The 2nd quarter of 2019 Adopt-A-Forest Program maintenance report shows that the average survival rate of planted seedlings is more than 85%, which is the minimum survival rate set by BCWD for the said program.

BCWD is very much grateful to the kind hearted donors/ partners of our Adopt-A-Forest Program. Rest assured that BCWD will continue to reforest our watershed and will provide regular updates to our respective partners. BCWD hopes to have more organizations/institutions/individuals to participate in the restoration and conservation of our degraded watershed for us to have a sustainable water supply not only for the present but also for the future generations.
